Program– Kodachrome Shootout

Kodachrome film has played a rich part in the history of modern photography. As one of the first and most popular color films, since its introduction in the 1930's, the film has been used by countless photographers to record this world and other worlds. With the demise of the film in 2010, HPS' February program will reflect upon Kodachrome's contributions to HPS now and in the past. The first part of the program will be a slideshow of Kodachromes from the past that members, and non-members are invited to bring in and show and discuss, if desired. HPS welcomes everyone to come and contribute their favorite few Kodachromes to the show. The second part of the program will be results of a Kodachrome Shootout conducted among HPS members in the fall, where several HPS members shot a roll of Kodachrome to typify the rich, accurate colors for which Kodachrome is famous.

From the President

We repeated last year's January program again this year and it was another smashing success! The program was called Photo Potpourri and members were encouraged to bring in photos to share with the group. Some were looking for critiquing and feedback. Others were just sharing some of their photo tricks and telling us how they got some fabulous photos. Thank you to all of those that participated.

Our competition topic for January was Reflections. We had an awesome turnout in the digital category with over 90 entries. As usual, the competition was tough. Former HPS member Monica Martin was kind enough to visit us from Guntersville to judge the competition. We were able to make it through the judging process but unfortunately didn't have much time for many comments on the winners. Monica was able to give us a little feedback during the judging process though. Thanks Monica.

For the February program, we are going old school and having a Kodachrome Shootout. Former HPS president, Joe Boyd, has organized this event inspired by the fact that Kodak has discontinued production of the film. Participants were given a roll of Kodachrome film and allowed to shoot whatever they wanted. They each had to choose 6 images to enter into the shootout. Entries and winners will be shown at the program meeting. We expect to have a little extra time during this meeting and will continue the Photo Potpourri from last month. Joe asked that anyone with slides that they would like to share to bring them in. Also a few members were not able to show their digital images last month. If we have time, we'll check them out too. Should be a fun night.
